Detail

We have the Load Stone. We climb into the Proxima ship plus we connect with the shuttle craft. Luna has set up the timer, and presses the button. The timer rapidly counts down, and Luna grabs the demon sword with his mage hand at the last second.

There is a massive explosion and we blast out of the basement through the enormous new crater in the middle of what was the tower. Hans is flying and we start getting frantic distress calls from Luna's "mom" Sola. The spider and coral are blown to bits and scattered everywhere.

Hans still has the blue orb in his chest and Sky Blue is holding on to it. Now that there's a bit of a break she starts to pull the orb out of his chest. As it goes up through his throat and then out of his mouth it's like a watermelon through a garden hose.

It's unpleasant to watch and more unpleasant to experience, but Hans survives. Sky Blue then swallows the glowing orb and bulks up a bit more. We are both intrigued and slightly frightened.

We fly over to save Sola. Luna is interrogating her to find out exactly what has happened. She says, "I'm just doing experiments, I am just a corporate CEO doing the very best to discover new things and make a quarterly profit. None of this is my responsibility regardless of how many people died. They happily gave their life for the corporation." Luna says okay bye see ya.

We take off in Luna's master's space/time pod, and we pickup the big time boat. Departing with both ships, we are traveling through space 15 years before the original time we left and we have two crew members with us from the Proxima ship. We ask them where do you want to go? They say we want to go to home to Proxima. After a lot of discussion we determined that the Proxima they're referring to is the proxy-Proxima where Hans grew up.

After even more discussion we determined that the space/time pod has incredible speed, but it has no guns and no armor. Luna decides to tinker with that problem while we fly toward Messis. We know that we can leave the two Proxima crew members there and they can get other transportation home to Proxima as we travel through space 15 years before our original timeline.

We take a long rest
